Eisenhower Takes Second Term Oath Of Office

President To Deliver Address Today

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP) — In the serene, formal elegance of the White House East Room, Dwight D. Eisenhower took the presidential oath today and embarked on the second term of an administration beset by troubled peace but blessed with abounding prosperity.

He swore into office for another four years by Chief Justice Earl Warren. Immediately preceding him, in the same place, Vice President Nixon took the oath from Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California. By tradition, the vice president is sworn in first.

The three-minute ceremony, held in the privacy of the White House because Inauguration Day fell on Sunday, was over by 10:29 a.m. EST, well in advance of the noon expiration of Eisenhower's first term.

Tomorrow noon there will be a retake in front of the U.S. Capitol, with thousands of dignitaries looking on in person and millions peering over their shoulder through the eyes of television.

More Colossal

This second run may be anticlimactic, after a fashion. But it will be bigger, more colossal by far than today's ceremony. For tomorrow the event will be splashed with all the pomp and pageantry that normally accompany a presidential inauguration.

Afterward will come the big inaugural parade, swinging down from the Capitol to the White House. There will be floats, bands, marching units, military missiles, an elephant, a working, watery miniature of Niagara Falls, and one gigantic 408-foot-long float depicting an America ruled by the consent of the governed.

Topping the day's formalities and festivities will come the four inaugural balls tomorrow night. Some 15,000 men and women in evening clothes will turn out to dance to "name" orchestras, quaff fruit punch and a champagne toast to the Eisenhowers, and promenade past them in grand marches.

Pennsylvanians

Today's calendar included such major events as a reception for visiting governors and other high officials and the traditional inaugural concert, featuring such stars as Lily Pons and Ethel Merman, Peter Palmer and Raymond Massey, the National Symphony Orchestra and Waring's Pennsylvanians.

The reception and concert were on Nixon's schedule, but the Eisenhowers passed them up.

The President secluded himself part of the day to work the last links out of tomorrow's inaugural address—an address that may run little more than 20 minutes. But he had time to chat with various other Eisenhowers and in-laws assembled from over the nation to share in the inaugural excitement.

There was time, too, for seeking spiritual guidance at the start of this second four-year term.

The President and vice president, in morning coat and striped trousers, attended 9 a.m. services at National Presbyterian church, where prayers were offered up for their protection and strength in the years ahead.

There were prayers, too, for the church, the nation, for all in authority and for world peace—which Eisenhower has said is his overriding goal.

The Eisenhowers and Nixons hustled from church to the White House by automobile. Mrs. Eisenhower put aside her silver milk stool, changed quickly from black gabardine suit to black tulle dress, and proceeded with her husband to the ceremony in the East Room.

The event was short and solemn, followed by a gay round of hand-claps, and coffee and rolls in the state dining room.

Two Candidates Turned Down

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20 (AP)—Two men seeking places on the United Steelworkers election ballot said today they have been turned down by the union's international executive board.

The two men are Frank W. O'Brien of Pittsburgh and Walter Ross of Baden, Pa. Both were campaigning for election to district director posts.

Easton Youths Admit Crimes

TWO EASTON men pleaded guilty to 10 charges of armed robbery, burglary and theft of an automobile before local peace justices Saturday.

They were James Louis Kessler, 22 of 507 Clinton Terrace, Easton and Sherwill Franklin Schmidt, also 22 of 11 N. Warren St., that city.

With their pleas the two men wiped these crimes off police books and settled their own fates in the hands of a court of law.

The armed robberies of two East Stroudsburg women on Dec. 19; of a Stroudsburg man on Dec. 28; a Tannersville service station on Dec. 29 and a Mountainhome diner on the same date.

Burglaries committed at these homes and summer cottages: Marguerite Speridovich, Stroudsburg RD1 on Jan. 4; William Winkler cottage, Shawnee, Jan. 8; Donald Fraser cottage, Shawnee, Jan. 8 and the Dr. Roman Batory residence, Stroudsburg RD1 on Jan. 9.

When the charge was read, before Justice of the Peace Elmer Bean, Schmidt listened calmly and then told officials he would not plead guilty to theft of the car.

Schmidt said that he would plead guilty to "being an accessory before and after the fact" but not with the actual larceny. He said that he drove Kessler to East Stroudsburg from Easton but that he didn't enter either the parking lot or the Van Gordon car.

His "not guilty" plea was entered to the larceny charge. Bean said he pleaded guilty to being an accessory.

Republicans Show Support For Dirksen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP) — Backstage jockeying already is under way among Republicans to line up support for Sen. Dirksen of Illinois to succeed Sen. Knowland of California as the Senate's GOP leader.

Although Knowland will not step down from the leadership post until the end of the session next year, Dirksen's friends already are laying political lines to land the job for him.

These colleagues apparently are preparing to fight any effort that may be made by all-out Eisenhower supporters to put one of their number in the post as a means toward carrying out the President's program to "modernize" his party.

In this connection there has been mention of the names of Sens. Clifford Case of New Jersey, Bush of Connecticut and Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

Choice

Saltonstall, who has been named by Sen. Thyne of Minnesota as his personal choice for the leadership job, is chairman of the Conference of all Republican Senators. He may want to retain that post.

Bush is a frequent presidential golfing partner.

Case had Eisenhower's fervent support in his 1954 race for the Senate. He has been a consistent backer of the President's program.

Dirksen was named party "whip," or assistant leader, earlier this month in a move initiated by Knowland to give Midwesterners representation in the leadership lineup. In this role, Dirksen sits in on White House conferences with the President, whose nomination he opposed strenuously in 1952.

At that time, Dirksen was supporting the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

Since Eisenhower's first election, Dirksen has supported the President's proposals generally, but has differed with him on some major issues.

Plans Begin For Standard Blood Bank

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20 (AP) — A plan to set up a standardized blood bank program for Pennsylvania hospitals got underway here over the weekend.

A spokesman for the commission on Blood Banks of the Pennsylvania Medical Society said the tentative plan would be "a major step" in streamlining the transfer of blood to operating rooms throughout the state.

Clearing House

Under the plan an Association of Blood Banks would be set up to act as a clearing house for the interchange of blood among all hospitals of the state. The association also would function as a standard-setting agency and conduct an educational program to ensure high-standard blood for operating rooms and clinics.

The project will be considered further at the Society's March meeting.

The commission's members include Dr. Robert F. Norris, Wynnewood, chairman; Dr. Hugh R. Gilmore, Jr., Philadelphia; Dr. Gordon D. Bell, Wilkes-Barre; Dr. Thomas K. Kepler, Danville and Dr. W.J. Kuhns, Pittsburgh.

Weather Tough On Water Mains

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20 (AP) — A return to milder weather played havoc over the weekend with Philadelphia's water mains.

As the temperature climbed above freezing for the first time in a week, water mains sprung leaks at some 40 places scattered through the city.

Study

Delegates studying the three-day debate that preceded the Assembly's decision doubted either side would give what the other side wanted. The prospect was the Assembly will have to meet again late this week or next to deal with a deadlock.

Israel has agreed that by Tuesday it will pull back all its forces now remaining beyond its armistice lines with Egypt — except those in the Gaza strip and on the Golan Heights.

British Suggestion

LONDON, Jan. 20 (AP)—The Sunday Express suggested today that President Eisenhower send former President Harry Truman to Britain on a special mission to help restore the British-American alliance.

As the precipitation rolled eastward, last week's frigid air lost its grip and temperatures moderated to seasonal levels. The moist warming trend was expected to break into the coastal plain from Connecticut to North Carolina during the night.

Comparison

Cross City, Fla., had an early Sunday morning reading of 40 degrees compared with 17 early Saturday. A scattering of subzero temperatures persisted in the Northeast where the mercury touched 16 below zero at Concord, N. H.

As the new arctic air mass moved southward from Alberta, temperatures were expected to drop through the Upper Mississippi Valley and the northern Rockies.

Meanwhile, rain or snow continued in a stormy weather pattern which developed from northern California to Washington Saturday. Heavy snows added about a foot to accumulations in some mountain areas, while in the Pacific Northwest an average of 2 to 4 inches of new snow fell.

Heavy rains drenched California as far south as San Francisco. Snow spread across Idaho into Montana and parts of the Dakotas while mixed rain and snow advanced into Nevada.

Medical Society May Obtain State Vaccine

MONROE COUNTY was virtually assured last night of a free polio vaccination program for all young people up to and including 19 years of age.

The vaccine will be provided free of charge by the State Health Department through its office of Polio Vaccine Control.

That same office will also provide — on loan to the county — all the syringes and needles necessary to carry out the mass inoculation program.

No charge will be made at all for the vaccine, syringes or needles, according to Dr. W. D. Schrack, head of the polio vaccine control bureau in Harrisburg.

By telephone from his home, Dr. Schrack told The Daily Record that the free vaccine may also be used for pregnant women.

There is "absolutely no ability to pay question" attached to the program, Dr. Schrack emphasized. The free vaccine is for "everyone from birth to 19 years of age and expectant mothers," he said.

Disclosure of the State program — which is actually more than a year old and apparently unclear in the minds of most public officials and medical authorities — appears to have solved a temporary setback which seemed to have stymied a free inoculation program approved by Monroe County Medical Society last week.

Meeting

At their last meeting, Monroe County doctors voted to give the polio shots without charge to area school children "if free vaccine was available."

An early check with authorities by members of the Society seemed to indicate that no such free vaccine was on hand.

Dr. Schrack said, however, that the vaccine was made available shortly after the U.S. Congress passed a $30 million appropriation for distribution of vaccine to all States. Money was made available on the basis of population from zero to and including 19 years of age, he said. That law was passed, he said, in August, 1955, but had apparently gone unnoticed by most counties in the State.

Dr. Schrack said that about four or five "circular letters" had been mailed out from his department explaining the program to medical groups all over the state. Many times, however, he said, such informative bulletins go unnoticed because they appear to be routine letters.

Local school officials hailed the prospect of the free inoculation program last night as a "wonderful step" toward the eventual conquering of paralytic polio.

They also volunteered use of school buildings for the program. This is the general system followed in most counties where the project has been undertaken, Dr. Schrack said.

Another group which will undoubtedly be called to serve with the Medical Society and the schools in setting up and administering the program will be the Parent-Teachers Associations in the county.

Clerical Work

PTA members will be needed to help with the clerical work which must be done to administer the program. Immunization slips must be kept on each child who is inoculated so that a full record of the disposition of the allocated vaccine may be kept by the State.

Monroe County doctors, in voting to give their time and effort voluntarily and without any charge to those receiving inoculations, have broken away from a pattern set by some medical groups in the State. In some communities the free vaccine program was stalled and eventually prevented because doctors refused to take part.

Gun Club Takes Steps To Provide Food For Area Game

Grain To Be Made Available

EFFORTS ARE being made to provide adequate food for Monroe County wildlife during the barren winter months.

George Niering, past-president of the Pocono-Paradise Rod and Gun Club, has asked club members to stop at his home to pick up corn, oats and buckwheat for distribution in wooded areas.

Niering is a resident of Scotrun. Niering also suggested that sumac, sassafras and maple be cut and piled in places where wildlife can feed on it during the severe weather.

He further remarked that many residents may want to buy inexpensive beef suet for area game.

Champion Defends Title In Chess

DEFYING COLD and snow and the rigors of winter, the old guard of the Stroudsburg Chess Club met on Thursday night at the office of John M. Price, club president.

Joseph Kushner, club star, devoted the session to setting the nearest contender for his crown, Harold James, back on his heels. Kushner defeated James in three consecutive games. One of these was a difficult "end" game, which ran about 90 minutes.

Mitchell Stackhouse, W. Main St., took on Louis Mondelle, East Stroudsburg. Stackhouse is one of the club organizers and is recognized as a superior player. Nevertheless the best he could do against Mondelle was to beat him two games out of three.

Honors
William P. Deering, Penn-Stroud Hotel, and A. J. Vlosak, Mount Pocono, engaged in a series of five games, honors going to Deering who won three. Vlosak and Mondelle then played several games.

Price was unable to be present. He has been on the sick list since Christmas and was unequal to the contest with the elements involved in attending the session.

During the past two weeks, club members have welcomed to the chess circle John Slaboski, Maple-in-the-Pines, a student who shows a most decided aptitude to the ancient game. Tutored at first by Edward Driebe and William P. Deering, the new player was able, this week, to put up good contests against his mentors.

CONSTIPATED? New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, bloat or gripe

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thirty" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be re-moistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to S-T-R-E-T-C-H and STIMULATE it to action; to a normal urge to purge.

And, of all laxatives, only COLONOID, the amazing new laxative discovery possesses COLONOID's great moisturizing capacity, plus COLONOID's stretching bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONOID is yet so smooth, so gentle it has proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy. Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONOID neither gags, bloats nor grips; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions.

It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONOID exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONOID, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! Only 98¢ for the 60 tablet package, brings positive relief at less than 2¢ per tablet.

Youthful Motorist Faces Traffic Charge

MARSHALLS CREEK — A 16-year-old East Stroudsburg motorist will be charged with a motor vehicle violation as the result of a two-car collision on Route 209 here at 10:20 a.m. yesterday.

Stroudsburg State Police said a complaint will be filed against James J. Magrosky, 16, of 35 Orchard St., charging him with driving without proper registration. Magrosky was involved in an accident with a car operated by Louise O. Prata, 26, of Marshalls Creek, near Billy Nelson's service station, troopers said.

Spot
The mishap occurred as the woman's car was traveling east on Route 209, and the other vehicle, owned by Edward Odzer of East Stroudsburg, RD 1, was going south across the highway, State Police reported.

Neither motorist was hurt, troopers said. However, some $200 damage was caused to the Prata car, and about $50 damage was caused to Odzer's auto.

British Call For Controls

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Jan. 20 (AP)—Britain called today for international control of the Gaza Strip between Israel and Egypt and for free navigation in the Gulf of Aqaba. She joined the United States in a demand for the immediate withdrawal of Israeli forces from all of Egypt.

British Minister of State Alan Noble told the General Assembly in the closing stages of debate on the Israeli withdrawal from Egypt that Britain feels "the Gaza Strip might perhaps come under some form of international administration and control."

Press
He said he would not press this point at this time since Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold likely will make a report to the Assembly after further talks on the subject of the disposition of the Gaza Strip. Concerning the Gulf of Aqaba, controlled for years by Egyptian guns until Israel forced the Egyptians out last November, Noble said Britain would support any "acceptable form of internationalization or any other arrangements guaranteeing free passage."

East Stroudsburg Man Pleads 'Not Guilty' To Burglary

Witnesses Appear At Hearing

WILLIAM T. CARROLL, East Stroudsburg, entered a plea of not guilty to a burglary charge Saturday before Justice of the Peace John Foelker.

Carroll has been charged by Stroudsburg borough police with the theft of two purses containing $29 from the kitchen of Biggs' American Restaurant in Stroudsburg. The purses were taken on Jan. 11.

Foelker said last night that three witnesses appeared before him to testify that they had seen Carroll at the restaurant on that night. He was formerly employed there.

Names
The witnesses were Helen Lord and Anna Bellis, kitchen employees at Biggs', to whom the purses belonged and Jonah James, manager of the restaurant.

Prosecutor in the case is John Tretheway, assistant police chief for the borough, who arrested Carroll on the night of the theft. The man was first arrested on a charge that he attempted to force his way into an auto occupied by a woman and her child. That incident also occurred on Jan. 11.

Two Men Arraigned In County

The two men were arraigned before three county Justices of the Peace. The initial arraignment took place in Stroudsburg before J. P. John Foelker in his former office at 25 N. Sixth St.

At that arraignment Kessler entered a plea of guilty to the armed robbery of Theodore Kelechava, 523 Thomas St., Stroudsburg, in Kelechava's garage on Dec. 28 and to the armed robbery of Donald Bentzoni at the Texaco service station in Tannersville the following night.

Kessler and Schmidt both pleaded guilty to burglarizing the Sperdovitch and Batory homes before Foelker.

Kessler alone was charged with the Fraser and Winkler burglaries. He entered guilty to both charges, Foelker said.

Before Justice of the Peace Ben East Stroudsburg, Kessler entered a plea of guilty to the charge of armed robbery of Ruth Naugle and Arlene West at their 125 Center St. apartment on Dec. 19. This was the biggest in the series of four robberies. It netted Kessler $212 in cash from three purses and rings worth $600 which were later pawned, he told officials, by Schmidt for only $50 in Philadelphia.

Kessler also pleaded guilty to the theft of Van Gordon's car on Jan. 9 from the industrial parking lot. It was this car which Kessler used in the daylight armed robbery of women in Nazareth and Bangor.

Saturday afternoon, Kessler was taken before Justice of Peace Emma Merwin in Mount Pocono. There he was charged with the armed robbery of Phil and Dom's Mountaintop Diner on Dec. 29.

Kessler entered a plea of guilty to this charge, also.

A third member of the gang which terrorized part of this county over the Christmas-New Year holiday was not arraigned before local authorities because he is too young.

Brother
He is Frederick Kessler, 16-year-old younger brother of James. He will be bound over to juvenile court for hearing on charges involving the Texaco and Mountaintop diner armed robberies.

Police officials lodged detainers against Kessler and Schmidt with Northampton County authorities. Since the two men were arrested by Easton police and Bethlehem State police, Northampton has "first call" on bringing them to trial.

They were returned to Easton prison Saturday afternoon by State police.

Officers handling prosecution in the arraignments were Sgt. Frank Burtner and Trooper Alexander Kearn, Stroudsburg State police; John Tretheway, assistant police chief, Stroudsburg; Travis Seese, chief of police for the borough of East Stroudsburg and James Horan and Robert Latzo, Mount Pocono State police.

Officials said Kessler and Schmidt moved through the three arraignments almost mechanically. One justice of the peace said that Kessler appeared quiet, calm and courteous.

It was almost the same phrase Kessler's robbery victims had used to describe him to police after he had appeared, masked and soft-spoken, with a gun in his hand.

Officials Predict President Will Battle Inflation Trend

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP) — Administration officials predicted today that President Eisenhower will call for a national effort to hold the price-wage line against inflation when he sends his annual economic report to Congress this week. But they said he probably will omit his 1956 request for consideration of a standby credit control law.

The recommendations are expected on Wednesday when the third and last of the major presidential messages goes to the new Congress.

Eisenhower can be expected to forecast further advances in national production and income to new peaks in 1957, administration advisers said privately, but at a possibly slower rate of gain than in the last year.

Indication
They indicated the President will re-emphasize his plea to industry and labor unions for "reasonable" pricing policies and wage demands, so as to thwart what he described in his State of the Union message as "the thief" of inflation.

This week's message will show that consumer prices have climbed almost 3 per cent since last year's economic report, while wholesale prices have advanced more than 4 per cent.

In the same period consumers have boosted their total installment debt to successive monthly records. But the rate of increase has slowed and one administration official said that the question of power to regulate down payments and the length of installment contracts "is not an active subject now."

Today's Talk Number 43

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower's inaugural address tomorrow will be the 43rd in the nation's history.

Of the 32 other men who have served in the White House, 17 served one elective term each, making 17 inaugural addresses. Nine besides Eisenhower were elected to two successive terms, making 18 more.

Cleveland was re-elected after being out of office four years, making two more inaugurations.

Franklin D. Roosevelt's four elections make four more.

That's a total of 41. Add Eisenhower's 1953 address to make 42.

Four other presidents made no inaugurations. They stepped up from the vice presidency because of deaths and never were elected president on their own.

Monroe County In Select Company

MONROE COUNTY is one of the few areas in the State which is blessed with fairly large natural lakes, it was revealed by the Pennsylvania Fish Commission yesterday.

Others are located in the northwest in Erie and Crawford counties, and about 300 are in the northeast mostly in Monroe, Wayne, Pike, Luzerne, Wyoming and Susquehanna counties.

Other Pennsylvania areas just don't have natural lakes. Such pool waters as exist are man-made impoundments. For the most part, these are far fewer than are needed to care for the lake fishing needs of the license buying public.

The numbers and kinds of fishable streams in Pennsylvania vary considerably from county to county, and the quality of the streams varies even more.

Pollution is an ever present problem on many of them. Hundreds of miles of once productive stream waters have been destroyed by pollution. Much of this has been caused by acid drainage from coal mines. Additional miles of stream are being destroyed or damaged every year by violators of the state clean streams act.

Waters also are being lost or damaged by soil erosion on badly managed farms and timberlands, by channel changes when roads and bridges are built or rebuilt, by water diversion for public or industrial or agricultural water supply, and by changes in stream flow or fish environment caused by other factors.

The result, from a combination of all causes, is a dwindling supply of available fishing waters, in the face of an almost automatically certain increase in fishing demand.

One way to meet the fishing water need is to build more lakes, dedicated in perpetuity to public use. In addition to providing more fishing, most of the lakes that would be built would be for warm water fishes rather than trout, and would afford the added advantage of extending interest in the type of fishing that nature could provide without costly hatchery assistance every year.

The former Fish Commission started such a lake building program. The present Commission is convinced of its soundness and wishes not only to continue, but to expand it.

It is not easy to say just how many of these lakes should be built in all, or how many in the next year, or the next five, 10 or 20 years. Nor is it easy to specify just where they should be built. A formula of sorts can be worked out, but it should be flexible enough to be changed easily and quickly to meet changing conditions.

Logically, lakes should be built where fishing pressures are greatest, where available fishing waters are scarce or ruined by pollution, and where there is little or no fishing now available for the species of fish the new lakes will best support.

At the same time, they cannot be built where the terrain and other factors aren't suitable. The land must be shaped right for the impoundment of a maximum usable acreage of water per dollar spent. The quantity and quality of the water supply must be right.

The watershed above must be managed properly, so the new lake will last for a half century or more without undue silting from soil erosion. Mineral rights must be secure, so no owner of such rights could at some future time force the drainage of a lake to dig out coal or other earth products. There should be little or no cost for relocation of roads, railroads, churches, cemeteries, and so on. Nor should much fertile farmland be taken out of production, for sooner or later that land will be needed to meet the food requirements of our growing population.

Also to be considered are other factors that add to the already high costs of building new fishing lakes. Many possible sites must be searched out and studied carefully before a decision can be made to buy and build. People who own the land must be found, and dickered with as to price. Titles have to be searched. Engineering and biological surveys must be had, to be sure conditions are right for dam construction and fish production.

The commission now has in its file and working file a list of nearly fifty possible new fishing lake sites. After the needed land has been bought, an average lake of about 100 acres now costs from $150,000 to more than $200,000 to build and make ready for fishing.

In the past few years, new lakes have been built with the help of Dingell-Johnson money, derived in grants based on receipts from a federal excise tax on fishing tackle. Pennsylvania's share of this runs to about $140,000 a year. To get this sum, Pennsylvania must first spend that much plus $46,000 in "matching" funds. D-J money, therefore, will permit the building of an average of about one new fishing lake per year. Using only that money, plus the state's prescribed share of 25 cents on the dollar, it would take more than sixty years to build one new fishing lake per county.

The need is much greater than that pace. Just how much greater is subject to debate. But without new funds, the sites cannot be searched out fast enough, the land cannot be optioned and bought, and the lakes cannot be built at more than a snail's pace.

More than that, it should be remembered that rural land values are going up at a fairly steady pace. The Fish Commission feels it should find the need and wanted sites quickly, before land costs go up to a point where they simply cannot be met and justified. A backlog of sites should be acquired now while they may still be had, even though new lakes may not be built as fast as the land becomes available.

Sultan Of Morocco Honored With Salute Of 21 Guns

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, Jan. 20 (AP) — There was a 21-gun salute down at Cannes today for the Sultan of Morocco. Since that is to be the local signal for the birth of a daughter to Princess Grace the expected uproar developed.

The cannonading couldn't be heard here, but someone who heard about it spread the news and there was some fine feathered scurrying by reporters for a while. If the baby is a boy the salute will be 101 guns.

Prince Rainier stuck close to home, with the advent of his first-born imminent, and watched a soccer match from a balcony of the palace. Princess Grace sat inside knitting.

A palace spokesman conceded under questioning that doctors' predictions that the baby would arrive between today and Jan. 25 might be conservative. But in gambling-conscious Monte Carlo, the betting tonight was even money that the baby would be here within three days.

Gifts and letters from well-wishers poured into the palace. An autographed photograph came from President Eisenhower. An anonymous donor in the United States sent a milk toothbrush—"for people who have everything."

Machinery
One member of the Society said last night that the machinery for getting the project underway should take only about two weeks or slightly more. Many of the local doctors worked hand in hand with school officials and others in setting up the program for first and second graders two years ago.

Dr. Schrack said that, if it were feasible, the State would also like to supply such routine commodities as alcohol and cotton for the administration of the program. But these supplies can be purchased more economically on the local level than they can be shipped, he said. For this reason, local groups or schools are asked to buy their own cotton and alcohol.

Syringes and needles used by the local doctors in the program are "on loan" from the State and remain State property, Dr. Schrack said.

The Medical Society in Monroe County appointed a committee to investigate a possible free vaccine program and this committee, presumably, will also have charge of working with school officials and others in setting it up.

Last night, apparently, the biggest stumbling block was completely out of the way: The vaccine is available and it doesn't cost a thing.

Presbyterian Congregation To Meet

ANNUAL congregational meeting of the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church will be held there at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 30, according to Jonas T. May, clerk of the Session.

At that time, the congregation will receive and consider the annual reports of the church and its organizations.

Elders
It will also elect four elders, four deacons, four deaconesses and two members of the nominating committee.

Following the congregational meeting, the corporation of the church will hold its annual session, at which time three trustees will be elected for a term of three years each, secretary Claude Leister reported.

Record Peacetime Budget Haunts President At Start Of Second Term

Dwight D. Eisenhower took the oath of office for his second term as President yesterday amid indications that the coming four years will be stormier than the last four.

Given a numerically unprecedented vote of confidence at the polls last November, Mr. Eisenhower can be certain the voters are well satisfied with his leadership in these troubled times and are anxious to see his government policies continued.

But all is not serene, judging from the reaction to two of his recent pronouncements.

One deals with the so-called Eisenhower Doctrine for the Middle East; the other concerns the 71.8 billion dollar budget for fiscal 1957-58, greatest in peacetime history.

The President asked Congress for stand-by authority to use military force to resist any Communist aggression in the Middle East and for 400 million dollars in economic aid for the area.

At first, there was considerable opposition in this country to the Middle Eastern proposal and there was a feeling Congress would substitute technical for economic aid in the plan while granting the President power to use armed might if necessary.

Support for the entire Mid-East Doctrine came from former President Truman and Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, retired NATO commander, among others, and weighed heavily in Mr. Eisenhower's favor.

It remained for the Communists to put the clincher on the argument, however. Russian Premier Bulganin and Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai attacked the proposal as "capitalist interference in the Middle East" and promised to take joint steps themselves to "protect" the area from "aggressors."

George Sokolsky Says...

Aggression Means More Than Invasion Of Another Country By Military Forces

In all discussions at the United Nations and elsewhere concerning the Suez or Hungary or Korea or any other place, the word, aggression, is commonly used without sharp definition. Is aggression only to be measured by the military invasion of one country upon the soil of another? So narrow and limited a definition surely does not fit these times when governments possess other instruments than armies and some of them equally or even more effective. Such instruments are not only infiltration and espionage, but the corruption of governments, although that is not too new a device among States. Talleyrand having practiced it and we now know that the Communist Minister, Count Witte, bribed the Chinese Viceroy, Li Hungchang.

As far back as 1920, the Soviet government laid it down as a principle that: "... it holds firmly to the opinion that a communist regime cannot be imposed upon another nation by force and that the struggle for it must be carried out by the working masses of each country themselves. Since in America and in many other countries the working masses have not conquered power and have not even been convinced of the necessity of conquering power, the Russian Government denies it necessary to establish an artificially to maintain peaceful and friendly relations with the existing Governments of those countries.

"It recognizes only too clearly that, the elementary economic needs of the peoples both of Russia and other countries require the establishment of normal relations and steady trade between them; mutually correct relations and non-interference in the internal affairs of both sides are an essential condition for this. The Russian Government considers it necessary, in the interests both of Russia and the United States, that, in spite of the differences in their social and political systems, proper and loyal relations of a peaceful and friendly character necessary for the development of trade between them and for the satisfaction of economic needs on both sides be established between them now."

This note of Sept. 10, 1920, issued by Chicherin to Russia's representatives abroad clearly defines aggression of a non-military character and if applied to Soviet conduct today makes of that country an aggressor in terms of this definition.

Article 5 of the Franco-Soviet Non-Aggression Pact, signed November 29, 1932, stated:

"Each of the High Contracting Parties undertakes to respect in every connection the sovereignty or authority of the other Party over the whole of that Party's territories as defined in Article 1 of the present Treaty (i. e. including territories which it represents in external relations and the administration of which it controls). (This can only refer to colonies). Not to interfere in any way in its internal affairs, and to obtain more particularly from action of any kind calculated to promote or encourage agitation, propaganda or attempted interference."

tion designed to prejudice its territorial integrity or to transform by force the political or social regime of all or part of its territories."

Molotov in 1939 developed the same theme in the same way. Thus, we see three Soviet ministers in charge of foreign relations devoting themselves to a definition of aggression. Chicherin, Litvinov and Molotov, whose words, if applied to recent Soviet conduct, would make an aggressor of Soviet Russia, which in the Middle East is using the supply of arms as a form of aggression.

The Charter of the United Nations should have dealt with the term, aggressor, on a realistic basis in the context of the Middle of the Twentieth Century. It has not done so. Paragraph Four of Article Two of the Charter says:

"All members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the Purposes of the United Nations."

But is force the only means of aggression in the present era? Article 34 and the whole of Chapter VII could be of some value if the United Nations wished to risk a quarrel with Soviet Russia but there is not a word in all this of the present day means of infiltration which makes war while there is an overt impression of peace. And nowhere in the Charter is there a definition of aggression which really fits the nature of aggression at this time when a major power can overwhelm a country like Syria without firing a shot.

Robert S. Allen Reports

Stalin Protege Suslov Man To Watch In Soviet

Washington, Jan. 20—The man to watch at the coming meeting of the Supreme Soviet is one of the least known but most powerful of the inner group of Kremlin rulers. He is Mikhail Suslov, a Second Secretary of the Communist Party, member of the Presidium, member of the Central Committee, devoted protegee of Stalin, and a fanatical Red Russian imperialist.

This backstage Kremlin czar holds the cards which may largely determine who emerges as First Secretary of the Communist Party.

The victor in this fateful inner struggle will be the top Kremlin boss.

First Secretary of the Communist Party is the most powerful role in Russia. Stalin used it to establish and maintain his ruthless dictatorship. Following his demise, this key place was taken over by chunky, hard-drinking, tough-talking Nikita Khrushchev.

Far from exercising Stalin's despotic control, Khrushchev has steadily lost influence to the point where it's touch-and-go if he can remain as First Secretary.

That's the crucial question which will be decided at the Supreme Soviet session. Khrushchev is not out yet. He may still hang on. Two potent factors are aiding him:

The backing of the Peiping regime, whose favor Khrushchev has zealously courted throughout. He has gone to great lengths to provide Red China with economic and military aid.

The highly explosive situation in the satellites on one hand, and on the other, the renewed squabbling with Marshal Tito.

Intelligence authorities have definite information that a major reason for Premier Chou En-lai's sudden trip to Moscow, and the proselyting sorties to Warsaw and Budapest, were to help Khrushchev weather the drive to oust him.

In this eventful melee, Suslov wields what could be the balance of power.

Closely allied with him are former Premier Georgi Malenkov, who made a big comeback last year; Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan and Lazar Kaganovich, veterans of the Stalin era; Marshal Zhukov, the Defense Minister; and former Foreign Minister Molotov.

Of this powerful group only Malenkov is a possibility as First Secretary of the Communist Party. All the others either are too old or out of the running for other reasons.

But while Malenkov has regained much of the ground he lost when as Premier, he still has some strikes against him for replacing Khrushchev. That's where Suslov comes in. He and Malenkov are close. If Suslov throws his weight to Malenkov that would decide it.

Or, they might make a deal for Suslov to become First Secretary and Malenkov Premier. That would decide that, too!

Khrushchev and Bulganin would be "kicked upstairs" or into some other innocuous pigeon-hole.

Note: Suslov is an engineer by training. He has been a member of the Communist Party since 1921; was first made a Secretary of the powerful Central Committee in 1947.

Under Fire—Few punches were pulled in the closed-door questioning of Secretary Dulles on the new Middle East policy.

A graphic illustration of this was his blunt grilling in the House Foreign Affairs Committee concerning a widely-published episode involving the Central Intelligence Agency, headed by his brother Allen Dulles.

In effect, Secretary Dulles was asked whether the CIA had "double-crossed the State Department."

Following is this testimony from the unpublished transcript: Representative Edna Kelly (D, N. Y.): "Is it true CIA sources notified Nasser the U. S. would not interfere if he seized the Suez Canal?"

Dulles: "There was a story that a representative of the CIA in Cairo gave Nasser advance notice of a message that Ambassador Allen was bringing from me. The story of what actually took place is very much garbled."

Mrs. Kelly: "What did take place?"

Dulles: "Nasser, in a rather emotional speech, gave a version that is not accurate. Indeed, the story has been denied by Ambassador Allen."

Mrs. Kelly: "I know that. I saw it in the papers. What is your version of what happened? Did a leak from the Central Intelligence Agency hurt your mission and the Suez situation at that time?"

Dulles: "No. That had nothing to do with the Suez. This was before the Suez situation became acute."

Mrs. Kelly: "Then there is no truth to the report that Nasser was warned ahead of time by either our embassy in Cairo or the CIA that we would act if he seized the Suez Canal?"

Dulles: "There is no truth to that."

Note: At a private meeting with Senate leaders, Dulles revealed that one important change already has been made in the Middle East resolution. This was the deletion of a provision giving the President special powers to use armed forces. Dulles told the Senators: "We were advised this clause should be eliminated. We checked it up with the Budget Bureau and they too were inclined that way. They thought this authority was unnecessary. So in deference to these views, we eliminated the matter."

After middle age the eyes begin to change in their structure. Most people get far-sighted after 45.

From the most ancient times the eagle has been regarded as the emblem of courage and might.

Ronson Newspaper Sparkling

By Jim Riley

A recent issue of Ronson Sparks, newspaper for Ronson Co., caught our eye. Might even say it was sparkling—that is if you can stand the pun.

The plant publication is a four page affair and very neatly put together by Bill Gorton, its editor.

The recent issue features a picture of the new Ronson plant in Delaware Water Gap, a letter from Milton S. Pohl, general manager, a story on the movement of the plant, and yarns on the company's basketball team, Community Chest and Blood Bank.

Another feature of the most recent Ronson Sparks was a personalities job in the Police Reserve of Monroe County. Highlighted with pictures were Emerson Stanton, Ken Henry, John Baabe, Foster Gould, Ronald LeBar and Sam Van Auken.

Congratulations, Bill, you and your staff do a fine job.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stadden, Tannersville, are currently enroute to Mexico, where they plan to spend a great deal of the remainder of the winter.

The trip also calls for a stop at Mrs. Stadden's former home in Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marvin, Bartonsville, plan a trip to Florida.

They expect to leave sometime next month.

Wells Van Campen, Bushkill, is dwelling on the fact that he wished he was spending this winter in Florida, as he did last year.

Last week was the clincher for the former Pike County Health Officer.

It was just too cold.

Willard Kintz, 627 King St., Stroudsburg, is currently vacationing in Miami Beach.

According to reports he's having the time of his life.

The firm operates gas companies from Sayre, Pa. to Rock Hill, S. C. Bill's office will be located on the second floor at 36 W. Broad St., Tamaqua, Pa.

Congratulations are certainly in order.

Mirror of Time

The angels will sing more beautifully and Gabriel will blow his horn more sweetly because Toscanini is in Heaven! He was a genius who brought the sounds of Paradise to the mortal world. The maestro was a titan—and a tyrant. Although he frequently lashed musicians, they never lost their reverence for him. They collected the splinters of batons he broke when he was furious. One source of his genius was his intense concentration. "Whatever he happens to be doing at the moment," his son once said, "is the biggest thing in his life—whether it is tacking a symphony or peeling an orange." Toscanini demonstrated rather than explained to musicians the effects he desired. For a light, floating sound he would throw a handkerchief in the air. For a quiet, biting vibration he posed like a mother rocking a baby in her arms. When he wanted a distant sound from one section of an orchestra rehearsing in Manhattan, he requested: "Make the sound not too far—about Brooklyn."

Described as an immortal, Toscanini remarked with a wistful twinkle: "Verdi will live forever."

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

I guess I've got the "luck of a lousy calf—live all winter and die in the Spring." After starting the car all through the 20-below weather and negotiating snow and ice with safety if not with grace—I wait until the temperature gets above freezing to run down the battery and get stuck in the mush.

And all because I let my better impulses triumph over by inclination. A regular "Saturday's Child" I was determined to be, to do all the housewife chores that you can let go because they don't show. So the car sat there a full 24-hours and solidified or something.

It isn't as if I had anything to show for my work, either. The oven is clean and the refrigerator defrosted, the boxes with the Christmas tree ornaments are in the attic, there are a lot of empty stoves in the check book, and I've copied the changed addresses from the Christmas cards. So, who will notice that?

Virtue may be its own reward but all I feel is disgruntled. What I should have done was go up and visit Mrs. Dreher on her 90th birthday. Imagine living through 90 winters of this sort of thing and coming through it bright, cheerful, and ready for more.

Maybe she could have shamed me into better temper by her example or let me in on her secret. Maybe it has something to do with wearing handsome hats—both she and Mrs. J. C. LeBar have spirits undaunted and undimmed, and they both always have beautiful hats.

Nope, I'm afraid there's more to it than that. Besides I can recognize a rationalization when I see it. I do not need a new hat. You might also remind me that the first thing I usually do with a new hat is sit on it by mistake. And if I still look doubtful, remind me of that check book, will you?

You can treasure whiteness. Here's how. Turn a cigarette over and look at the narrow stripe where the paper overlaps. Linens washed regularly at our laundry are as white as that stripe. THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

These days anything that's apple blossom pink or turquoise, can catch my eye. Maybe that's why I noticed the sugar containers with plastic pouring top, and the matching salt and pepper that sell for a dollar a set in our housewares department. Or maybe I noticed them simply because they've just been moved upstairs from the stock room. In any event, they're cute and practical for the kitchen, and one of my special Pre-Inventories discoveries . . . I noticed too that there are just six more of those violet-spattered china refreshment sets on Mary Hitesman's clearance table, $8.00-o-o-r, if you're in an entertaining mood, or if you've broken some of your previously purchased set, now's the time to say buy-buy to your money . . .

The clearance table of china can also yield some attractive pitchers in various practical sizes priced from 25c to 79c. Seems to me that one never has quite enough of these—you can use them for gravies, as well as cream, juice, milk, batter, and all those other pourables that make for good living . . .

Florence Predmore reminds me that she has a number of copies of the new, revised edition of Dan Dale Alexander's book, "Arthritis and Common Sense." As a matter of fact, she has loaned me a copy to read and discuss on our Wyckoff radio program some morning next week. The book is the result of study and experimentation by a man who himself suffered from arthritis, and who watched his mother before him suffer over a long period of years. Menus are included, for, as Dr. Alexander points out, you can eat yourself into AND OUT OF arthritis. The wrong diet so persistently followed by young people today may, he feels, eventually produce many more sufferers than there are at the present time . . .

How do you like THIS for a query, "Is it one of your own recipes, Monmie, or is it safe to eat?" Maybe I should begin collecting cook books—and our book shelves at Wyckoff's are just the place to find them . . .

Bea Gorgy has just received a shipment of bridal-cake-pretty collars, that will give any dark winter dress a younger-than-springtime lift. Of layer upon layer of frothy nylon lace, the price is only 1.90, while 1.98 will buy you something even more up to the minute—a wide waffle pique creation that has a sharp diagonal line in front, closes at the side with a crisp bow, and boasts the square look in back. These pique collars are made still more attractive with an edging of luxurious tating. The detachable collar is a charming way of taking fashion by the throat this spring and shaking the most out of a dollar bill . . .

Want to know something else you can buy for 1.98, if you're sufficiently young . . . or merely think you are? It's an angora cap with a convenient pearl-rimmed cutaway for a pony tail—or a pearl edged angora bandeau. Might as well be white on top, since we're definitely having it white underfoot . . .

Dollie Erdman has a few pieces of Skyway Luggage still available at special prices in the closet sale announced several days ago. There are just 15 pieces, as a matter of fact, including men's 21" and 24" cases, and fly commuters, Ladies' 26" wardrobe, pullman cases, weekenders, and one square tote, savings are great, and the opportunity to buy now is too good to ignore if you can possibly take advantage of the values . . .

Fran Meredith drops by advertising and goes gaily berserk with a can of Blue Spruce home fragrance spray. His idea is probably that if you sell it here, you should use it here—and the thought is a happy one, when not overdone. (Virgil, where'd I put my gas mask?) . . .

Madeline Partlow's black handbag created a stir at Business and Professional Woman's Club the other evening, when it was observed that the handle is actually a safety pin about 14 inches long. (The real thing too!) "That's clever," I commented, "where did you buy your handbag?" The answer couldn't have delighted me more, Chirped Madeline—"Why WYCKOFF's, of course?"

Van D. Yetter Demonstrates Advantages Of Mobile Homes

HERE'S HOW TO STRETCH THAT SHRINKING HOUSING DOLLAR—Look at all the extras you get when you buy a mobile home. Forty-three items of furniture in this picture valued at $1,255.00. The above picture represents furniture, appliances and fixtures supplied as standard equipment in the average mobile home. In any comparable new, modern stationary home these would represent an additional expense. For a first-hand look at the only complete, low cost package home in the market today, visit Van D. Yetter, local mobile homes dealer, Route 402, near Marshalls Creek.

Mobile Home Is Complete

THE MOBILE home is the only complete, low cost package home on the market today.

That is why more than one hundred thousand families each year purchase new or used mobile dwellings.

Some of these families move their home location frequently, some only once in every two or three years—but all of them have learned they can enjoy occupations and life in various parts of this country without being earth-bound.

Mobility of living has long been a factor in the success of both business and social life in the United States.

Had it not been for the desire to move and seek new horizons and new opportunities we would still be crowded into the area along the Eastern seaboard—in fact, we would never have arrived on this continent in the first place.

This desire to move is reflected today through construction groups, sales groups, professional groups and in military organizations. "Young marrieds"—you who today are starting your life together—mobile homes offer you that grand opportunity to look to your locations before they become permanent. To do as your fathers and grandfathers did—to move from job to job and community to community until you find the place you wish to make your permanent home. Enjoy the traditional American freedom. That thought of freedom on the part of the young married group is the thought which was responsible for the discovery of the west—for the founding of the cities on the great plains.

Remember Chicago, Kansas City, Houston and others were all originally mobile home parks—true mobile homes of those days were covered wagons—but they were young couples seeking new opportunities and taking advantage of a mobile way of life to do it.

Why is the mobile home of today such a wonderful opportunity? Because it is the only home completed under one factory roof with modern production methods—you need the help of no carpenters or contractors to erect it on the site.

When a mobile home, constructed by a member of the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Assn., leaves its factory it is fully equipped with refrigerator through living room furniture. No other type of modern construction can make this boast.

To the young couple with limited finances it offers another advantage—it is the only home where everything from the building through the furniture is financed under one payment plan. No need to move into a small house—refinish it yourself—purchase furniture on a time payment plan—then spend more money landscaping your property when you purchase a mobile home.

With the mobile home you have the opportunity of moving into a well landscaped, inspected, mobile home park.

Why look for a mobile home with the label of the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Assn.?

Because they are the only mobile home manufacturers who understand your needs sufficiently to band together and spend their money for mobile home park improvement, to the extent of employing architects to help design parks and inspectors to inspect parks and rate parks; they have contributed large sums of improvement in standards of their products.

See all the advantages a mobile home offers you. Take a tour through the models on display at Van D. Yetter's local mobile homes dealer, Route 402, near Marshalls Creek.

IT CERTAINLY was gratifying to report that Stroudsburg High displayed real hustle and an extra amount of fortitude in its come-from-behind victory over Lehighton.

In their early outings, the Mountaineers of John Kupiec displayed great ability in the opening 8 to 16 minutes and then seem to fold up going down the stretch.

But the word from the Indians wigwam Friday night noted the Mountaineers going practically full tilt all the way. More or less, Kupiec let his boys loose and they did alright in the process.

Stroudsburg used a press throughout the 32 minutes of action against Lehighton and for the first time in quite a spell a Mountaineer foe was held to less than 55 markers. This is something that also sweetened this writer's tooth.

Another phase that wasn't brought out in the original story was that sophomore Dick Everitt made his debut with the varsity. Hitherto Dick has been one of the keys in Charley Winter's jayvee quire.

We imagine Kupiec, after going with all his guards and failing to come up with one good outside man, decided to dig a little deeper. And from the looks of things the penetration into the Winter's bag proved to be okay.

"It was the best team we've faced all season," Doug Schoonover, East Stroudsburg High coach mused after his Cavaliers went down to defeat at the hands of Parkland High the other night.

"They certainly can move a ball. Don't see how they lost to Fountain Hill. They've got more balance than the Hillers and better marksmen, the Cavaliers mentor noted.

"Our club just makes too many mistakes. You can't keep throwing the ball away and expect to stay in the running. Of course, our foul shooting was terrible. Guess the boys will have to go through 50 spiece today," the Eastburg court general summed up his proteges in a final analysis.

The importance of foul shooting to a team—despite other mistakes—was shown in the Cavaliers' 12-point loss to the Trojans. Eastburg made only nine of 29 and a good share of these charity line failures came on the first shot, automatically throwing away a second attempt.

Schoonover's capsule summation of his charges hits the nail on the head. East Stroudsburg does make more than their share of mistakes. In the first half against Parkland, Eastburg lost the ball at least 20 times without getting a shot off. This type of sputtering offense is not the best method for winning ball games.

The Cavaliers are green but it is veterans who are doing more than their share of heaving away the ball. Most of the "foul ups" come via over-anxiousness on the part of the perpetrator.

And when you have the expected misuses from the inexperienced members of the team, plus the not expected slow-downs of the veterans, then you've got troubles. This Doug Schoonover has.

Al Sterner has an ideal setup for young-old, fat-skinny men. Starting this Wednesday at the Stroudsburg YMCA a program of volleyball for all older males will swing into full time action.

The "fun for all" guarantees to send a man home relaxed. Warm-up time is from 5 to 6 p. m. and league play is scheduled for 6 to 8 p. m.

Persons wishing membership details should contact John DeVivo, Sterner's "partner" in this body-building chore.

If anyone has a free evening tomorrow, it would be worth the time and effort to travel to Canadensis and take in the Pocono Twp. and Barrett battle for first in the Monroe County Scholastic League.

Harry Werkheiser's boys are leading the circuit with an 8-0 log, while Joe Murray's Barrett hoopers trail by one game with a 7-1 log. Incidentally, Pocono handed Barrett its only league setback in Tannersville back in December.

Millersville Hands ESSTC Five 83-66 Setback

German's 22 Best Effort Of Warriors

MILLERSVILLE — East Stroudsburg Teachers' once hot court quintet went down to their third straight defeat here Saturday as Pennsylvania Teacher Conference's perennial champions cooled off the Warriors, 83-66.

The loss was the fourth in eight starts for the Warriors who only two short weeks ago were riding high on a four-game winning skein.

Lake in their winning tilt with the Warriors, at East Stroudsburg Dec. 1, the Millers were slow in starting. But after the first 10 minutes of action the Lancaster suburban began opening up and then ruled the rest of the way.

Charley German was the Warriors only bright light in defeat. The former Whitehall star ripped the nets for 22 points to take high honors for Jim Reed's proteges.

McLaughlin Held Dave (Kelly) McLaughlin, usually a 20-point or more contributor to ESSTC scoring, was held to 11 points, one of the lowest outputs in his career on the Hill.

Millersville's one-two punch of Reggie Rife and Johnny Parker again dominated the points department, netting 24 and 20 points respectively.

By winning, Millersville ran its season record to 8-4 and its PSTC log to 6-0. In three years, the Marauders have turned back 45 consecutive conference foes.

Idle 14 Days East Stroudsburg, which had one 27-day recess during the Christmas holiday season, will be idle again for 14 days — until Feb. 2 — because of semester examinations. The Warriors next opponent will be Cheyney STC at East Stroudsburg.

The boxscore:

Machen Versus Vet Maxim In Week's Top Fistic Battle

By JACK BAND
The Associated Press

EDDIE MACHEN, the young unbeaten heavyweight prospect from Redding, Calif., bumps up against an experienced veteran Friday night at Miami Beach when he takes on Joey Maxim, the former light heavyweight champion.

Maxim, now 34, is starting a comeback after a long layoff. He held the 175-pound title from 1950 until late 1952 when he was dethroned by Archie Moore. Pal Joey is the only fighter to hold a decision over Floyd Patterson, the current heavyweight king. Maxim won a hotly disputed decision over the ex-Olympic boxer in an eight-rounder at Brooklyn, June 7, 1954.

19-0 Record

Machen has a 19-0 record for his short career dating back to 1955 with 14 knockouts. Maxim has been stopped only once, in 1943, in well over 100 fights since 1941.

Carlo Ortiz, a transplanted Puerto Rican now living in New York, is another unbeaten youngster to show his wares this week. Ortiz, also winner of 19 straight, boxes Bobby Rogers of Chicago in a 10-round lightweight match at Chicago Stadium Wednesday.

Angelo De Fendis, a middleweight slugger from Brooklyn, faces Jerry Luedee, a solid puncher from New Haven, Conn, in the Monday night feature at St. Nicholas Arena in New York. De Fendis knocked out Ernie Durando in 2½ minutes of the first round on Christmas Eve at St. Nick's, his fifth straight victory.

Jimmy Martinez, the busybody from Phoenix, Ariz., has a heavy travel schedule. After Monday's match at Austin, Tex., with Rocky Caballero, he will take off for New York and Africa. He is scheduled to box Jim Elliott in Johannesburg, South Africa, Feb. 2.

The De Fendis-Luedee match on Monday will be seen on TV (DuMont) in some sections. Ortiz and Rogers will be heard by AEC radio-TV and Machen-Maxim by NBC radio-TV.

The European boxing union considers a Friday match at Berlin between Gerhard Hecht of Germany and Yolande Pompey of Trinidad an official elimination bout, leading to a chance at Archie Moore's light heavy title.

Cyclones Put Emphasis On Court Defense

By MURRAY ROSE
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JUST in case you believe there's no such thing as defense in basketball any more, take a look at what Iowa State and Don Medsker are doing out in Big Seven Conference territory.

The Cyclones and the 6-8 Medsker made big basketball news last Monday night by throttling Kansas and Wilt Chamberlain, 39-37. Medsker and Co. proved the value of defense again Saturday night by whipping Oklahoma 74-54.

Medsker, who held the 7-foot Chamberlain to 17 points, put the pressure on Oklahoma's Joe King, holding the conference's leading scorer to a measly eight points. King scored five more points on Medsker's replacement, John Krochieski.

Promotion

The two wins made it three straight for the ninth rated Cyclones who appear headed for a promotion in the next Associated Press rankings. Iowa State now has an 11-2 record overall and 2-1 in the conference for a tie with Nebraska, but a bit behind Kansas (3-1).

Kansas' first loss of the year figures to cause more shufflings in the rankings. Second ranked North Carolina was idle during the week and now is the only ranking team with a perfect record (15-0).

Only seven of the top 20 teams saw action in the limited program Saturday night. Kentucky (4), Louisville (5), Iowa State (9), Vanderbilt (10), Canisius (11), and Ohio State (17) were the winners. Oklahoma City (13) dropped a thrilling, double overtime tussle to Texas Christian, 86-84.

Kentucky (12-3) racked up Tennessee, 97-72; Louisville (11-2) rolled to its seventh straight victory, beating Kentucky Wesleyan, 96-63; Vanderbilt (11-2) trounced Georgia Tech, 93-74; Canisius (12) 21 whipped Niagara, 74-65; and Ohio State (9-3) thumped Michigan State 70-51 for the Buckeyes' fifth straight victory and fourth in a row in the Big Ten.

New Trouble May Come After Nasser

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

RUNNING through much of today's comment on the Middle East is the theme—it amounts to a wishful thought—that President Gamal Abdel Nasser can and possibly will be toppled as the ruler of Egypt. That could be, but what comes after Nasser? The danger to Western interests might be even greater.

Passions and rivalries of the Arab East, stirred recently to the edge of explosion by events there, have brought about a condition which is little appreciated in the Western world. The Communists understand it.

Peculiar

Peculiar to countries like Syria, Egypt, Iraq and to some extent all the rest of the Arab East, is the retirement to the background of moderate political forces and old guard leaders. The reason seems to be that these forces are unwilling to take the risk of leading. In today's situations, even if the opportunity were there for them to grasp, they could hardly come to the fore without outside help.

The young, inexperienced and impatient men of the Arab East are steadily moving in. "Among them, often, are the extreme young men of the Arab world's small educated segment."

There is a gap between the young men and the old experienced leaders, and it leaves open the way for a real lunatic fringe to attempt filling whatever political vacuums there may be.

Nasser may be guilty of the dictatorship charges against him. Indeed, in a country like Egypt, one could hardly expect order today under anything but an authoritarian government. What really matters is the direction in which that government has been going, willingly or through the force of events.

The promises of the Egyptian revolution of 1952 are fading away. Already Nasser's Revolution Council, upon which the United States once placed high hopes for a forward-looking Egyptian nationalism, has been pared down to a half-dozen men under Nasser.

Council

The Revolution Council men, all formerly from the ranks of the army, have grown somewhat in political wisdom. They are aware of the danger to Nasser's position inherent in the Suez Crisis. They know he suffered a defeat. The public thinks the opposite and Nasser is both a hero and martyr for the time being, because nobody who knows will dare say what is the truth of Egypt's position.

Rulers and many a politician in other Arab countries would like to be rid of Nasser. Actually, some of them plotted to get rid of him. But in this respect, the British and French did Nasser a big favor.

Talk about an impending fall of Nasser seems to overlook the potentialities. If the takeover were by force, it could come only from extreme elements. The moderates already have demonstrated their unwillingness and their fear of "the streets," whose mobs worship Nasser as a hero in the Arab world. The result likely would be more chaos in the Middle East.

Latest News Produces Mixed Results Of Stalemate, Triumph, Failure, Love, Taxes

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)— Authority, behemoth or pint-sized, wrestled manfully with the pesky human element last week and produced the usual mixed results of stalemate, triumph, and failure. A love strike confronted the government of Toron, an African kingdom in western Uganda. Boys are refusing to marry until bride prices are reduced, and the government was asked to look into the matter. In Washington, the Post Office Department crowded happily that it has eliminated 1,685 different forms which "formerly plagued the public and postal personnel." Moreover, the department said, 8,000 forms now in use at major post offices will be pared down to 119. The whole thing, authorities claimed, adds up to a major victory in the "battle against red tape."

Taxes

Taxes are internationally unpopular and in Tokyo, cab drivers annoyed by a proposed gasoline tax increase conspired to give Prime Minister Tanzan Ishibashi a headache. Some 60 cabbies parked in front of Ishibashi's house and clamped down on their horns. Police moved the taxis by naked muscle power before the din stopped.

The Army yielded again to its apparently uncontrollable urge to change the name of its big supply depot at Ogden, Utah. Last week it was rechristened for the seventh time, in its 16-year history, becoming the "U.S. Army General Depot, Utah," from the less stately "Utah General Depot." Ogden residents ignored the Army's name-switching frenzy, continued to call the depot "Second Street" from its location.

Cameramen Out On Limb During Parade

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)— Some of the television cameramen covering the Eisenhower inaugural parade tomorrow may find themselves out on a limb.

A 15-foot tower for TV cameramen was erected opposite the White House reviewing stand. But it was built west of a big tree, instead of east of it as planned.

Result

Result: A big limb obtrudes across the camera line of sight toward the reviewing stand.

The historic old tree can't be demolished. The concrete-anchored tower can't be moved.

TV technicians are struck with the problem of getting in front of, around or out on the limb.
